Transfer Coursework

- Meet with an adviser for an unofficial review of your previous credit to plan how classes could transfer toward your degree, rtc.edu/advising
- For an official review, fill out a Transcript Evaluation Request form and send RTC an official copy of your transcript(s), rtc.edu/transfer

Advising and Recommendations

- Business transfer students should talk with their future transfer university early on to plan for specific classes to choose for natural science, humanities and social science and your elective.
- Some universities may require additional classes for their business programs.
- Business programs have competitive admissions. For many schools you will need a cumulative GPA significantly above a 2.0 & a higher GPA in specific classes.
- Consult with your RTC adviser on a regular basis to stay on track to graduate and transfer, rtc.edu/advising
- Some universities may require that you take 10 credits of world language at the college level if you did not complete two years of a world language in high school, or take a test if you already speak another language. If your goal is international business, a higher level of world language competency may be required. Talk to a transfer adviser at your future university for more information.
- BUS&201 Business Law must be completed in the United States. Heritage University, Pacific Lutheran University (PLU), Seattle University (SU), and Walla Walla University will accept BUS&201 as an elective, and you will need to take an upper-division business law class at your university.

■ University-Specific Transfer Admission Requirements

Talk to your adviser about the option to use a consortium agreement to take a class from another college.

Gonzaga University

- You must have an equivalent class for BMIS 235 Management Information Systems.

Pacific Lutheran University

- You must have an equivalent class for CSCE 120 Computerized Information Systems or complete a computer skills test showing that you have met all course outcomes.
 - Talk to RTC's transfer adviser about options like IT 101 at Green River College.

University of Washington, Seattle campus

- MATH& 146 will not meet the statistics requirement for the Foster School of Business at UW-Seattle. You need a calculus-based, business statistics class that is the equivalent of UW's QMETH 201 or STAT 311.
 - Talk to RTC's transfer adviser about options like BA 240 at Bellevue College or MATH 256 at Green River College.

Washington State University, all campuses

- Recommended to have an equivalent class for MIS 220 Managing Information Technology.
 - Talk to RTC's transfer adviser about options like BTAC 100 or IT 101 at Green River College.

Western Washington University

- You must have an equivalent class for MIS 220 Introduction to Business Computer Systems.
- Talk to RTC's transfer adviser about options like CS 110 or CS 250 at Bellevue; BUS 169 at South Seattle; or BTECH 211 at Highline.
- The Manufacturing and Supply Chain Management major requires chemistry and physics in the natural science category, recommended to consult with a WWU adviser about choosing natural science classes & elective.
